ARIS Title Insurance Corporation is the recognized global authority on legal title risks in the international fine art and collectibles market. Today, ARIS remains the sole insurer and underwriter of title insurance for this specialty market. That includes a wide spectrum of objects, such as rare books and manuscripts, rare stringed instruments, estate jewelry, vintage automobiles and memorabilia. Through its specialized title insurance policy, ARIS provides a risk-transfer solution to title defects for individual private collectors, non-profit museums, commercial institutions, private wealth brokers, and institutions of higher education. Headquartered in New York, ARIS is a division of NYSE-traded Argo Group (ARGO), an international specialty insurance company.

The Art Loss Register is the international due diligence database used by the art trade, currently listing more than 500,000 items. Within the art market the Art Loss Register now works with over 120 auction houses and 16 art fairs internationally, as well as countless dealers and art advisors. It provides an opportunity for police forces, insurers and theft victims to register stolen, looted and fake art and antiques; for lenders to record security interests; and for law firms to record legal claims. The Art Loss Register searches over 400,000 items moving both publicly and privately through the international art market against its database each year and, working closely with law enforcement, plays a vital role in the recovery of stolen art worldwide.
